DSpace Digital Library and Institutional Repository

Dear Staff, Faculty Members, Research Scholars & Students

The Arrupe Library & Information Centre (ALIC) has introduced a digital library and institutional repository access facility using the world's best and the top DSpace digital & institutional repository system software. This software has been used by majority of all the institute of national importance and central universities of the country including INFLIBNET's Shodhganga and also the best universities of the world.

SJU's digital library and institutional repository is a scholarly archiving facility for the SJU community built with the BSD DSpace software developed by MIT Libraries and Hewlett-Packard Labs in collaboration. This service enables university members to archive their scholarly publications, patents, conference/workshop-related sources, important rare digital books, and other important institutional archival documents. We introduced this service to assist our university staff, faculty, researchers, and students in the self-archiving and long-term preservation of their scholarly publications, provide easy access to these publications worldwide, and improve the impact of their research, in keeping with the goals of the Open Access movement.
